About OpenCode

Since its inception in January 2017, OpenCode, IIT-Allahabad's very own Mini-GSoC has grown into a highly reputable and much awaited competitive event. Having gained wild popularity after just two iterations, OpenCode attracts participants from all across India!

The main aim and ideal behind starting OpenCode was to make it a beginner centric programme that gives newcomers a chance to learn and grow while working under the influence of some highly skilled mentors. And indeed, OpenCode has managed to achieve this by instilling its participants with enough confidence and experience to work on real world projects by providing them with lucrative incentives and motivation to encourage them to try and excel in the competition!

One of the major problems the open source community faces is the lack of exposure to beginners, especially women. We successfully increased the reach of OpenCode18, as reflected by the demographics of participants and mentors. This iteration consisted of 35 projects with 25 mentors, and over 330 participants from 73 colleges pan-India. OpenCode'18 also saw a major spike in female participation (44, i.e. 13%) as compared to a 3% last year.

The event saw close competition among the participants and resulting in development of many amazing projects!
